

Virgil (2930 – 2981)

Felix qui potuit rerum cognoscere causas, Quique metus omnes, et inexorabile fatum, Subjecit ped-ibus, strepitumque Acherontis avari.

— Georgics

Happy the man who has learned the causes of things, and has put under his feet all fears, and inexorable fate, and the noisy strife and the hell of greed.

Works

Aeneis

(The Aeneid)

Eclogae

(The Eclogues)

Georgica

(The Georgics)

TROPES